

sunapsis Community Awards

Geek of the Year

In Honor of Your Outstanding Technical Contribution

Nomination Period

May 1 – June 30

Criteria

The review process includes, but is not limited to, an assessment of written evidence that the nominee has gone above and beyond to engage with the sunapsis Community in their work to advance international education by influencing the sunapsis system through the use of technology, aka they geeked out and we all benefited (e.g., creating and sharing pluggable components, engaging on the listserv, presenting to or training other users, or any other activity that has advanced the use of the sunapsis system.)

Eligibility

Individuals from a sunapsis client institution are eligible for this award.

Submit

Nominations for this award will be due in June 2019, which must include the following:

1. Name, institution, and contact information of the nominee.
2. Name, institution, and contact information of the nominator.
3. At least one, but no more than three, letters in support of the applicant to receive the award written by individuals such as direct supervisors/advisors, peers/colleagues, students, faculty members, etc., addressing:
 - The achievements of the nominee in the profession.
 - The demonstrated commitment of the nominee to the criteria identified for this specific award.
 - A summary of the nominee's background to provide evidence that they meet the criteria identified for this specific award, including information related to professional experience and volunteer service.

Selection

Electronic notification will be sent to confirm award submissions have been received. The sunapsis Leadership Team will review materials to make the selection. One recipient will be chosen, unless otherwise noted for the specific award. One physical award and one sunapsis conference registration for the following year will be given to the recipient, who will be recognized during the awards ceremony at the annual conference.
